	Social activities play a crucial role in the personal and professional development of college students. Beyond academics, participating in social events and extracurricular activities can have lasting benefits, shaping students into well-rounded individuals. Below are some key reasons highlighting the importance of social activities for college students: Social activities provide a platform for students to meet people from diverse backgrounds, helping them develop communication and interpersonal skills. Networking opportunities gained through clubs, events, and volunteer activities often pave the way for professional connections and friendships that can last a lifetime. In this view IOT department organized a visit to Parisar Sakhi an organization working for rag picker women. There students came to know how this organization works for their wellbeing. The students also came to know the importance of Plastic Recycling. In this organization the members showed how the non-usable plastic bottles, bags are converted in usable things.
